What is Captive Insurance?

Specialized Form of Self-Insurance

Captive insurance companies are owned and controlled by the organizations they insure, providing a tailored approach to risk management.

Greater Control and Flexibility

Captive insurance allows businesses to have more control over their insurance policies, coverage, and risk management strategies.

Customized Risk Solutions

Captive insurance enables businesses to design insurance coverage that specifically addresses their unique risk exposures and requirements.

Captive insurance empowers businesses to take a proactive and strategic approach to managing their risks, tailored to their specific needs and goals.

Captive Insurance Structure

Captive Formation

Aurora guides clients through every step of captive formation—from strategic planning and tailored domicile selection to full regulatory compliance. Our process includes robust AML procedures, ensuring a seamless and compliant path to establishing a captive that supports long-term success.

Captive Ownership

Captives are usually owned in a mirror image of the operating business. Ownership may be held by individuals, spouses, families, trusts, LLCs, partnerships, corporations, or other U.S. persons, tailored to meet client objectives.

Captive Governance

Each jurisdiction has its own regulatory environment and ongoing compliance requirements, making careful selection essential to align with a client's objectives. Aurora helps clients navigate these considerations to ensure the optimal domicile for long-term stability and effectiveness.

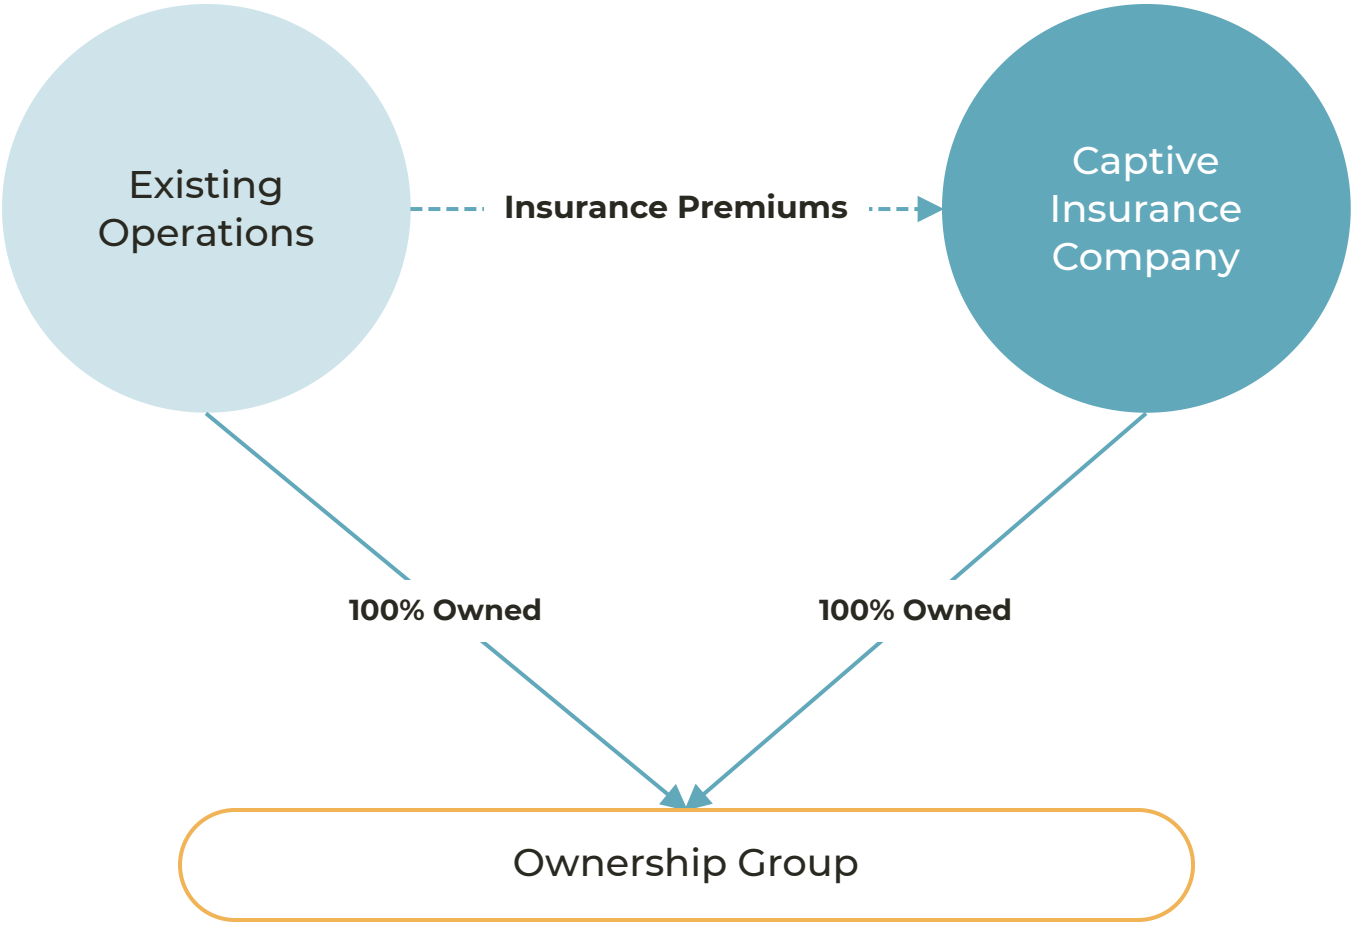
Captive Operations

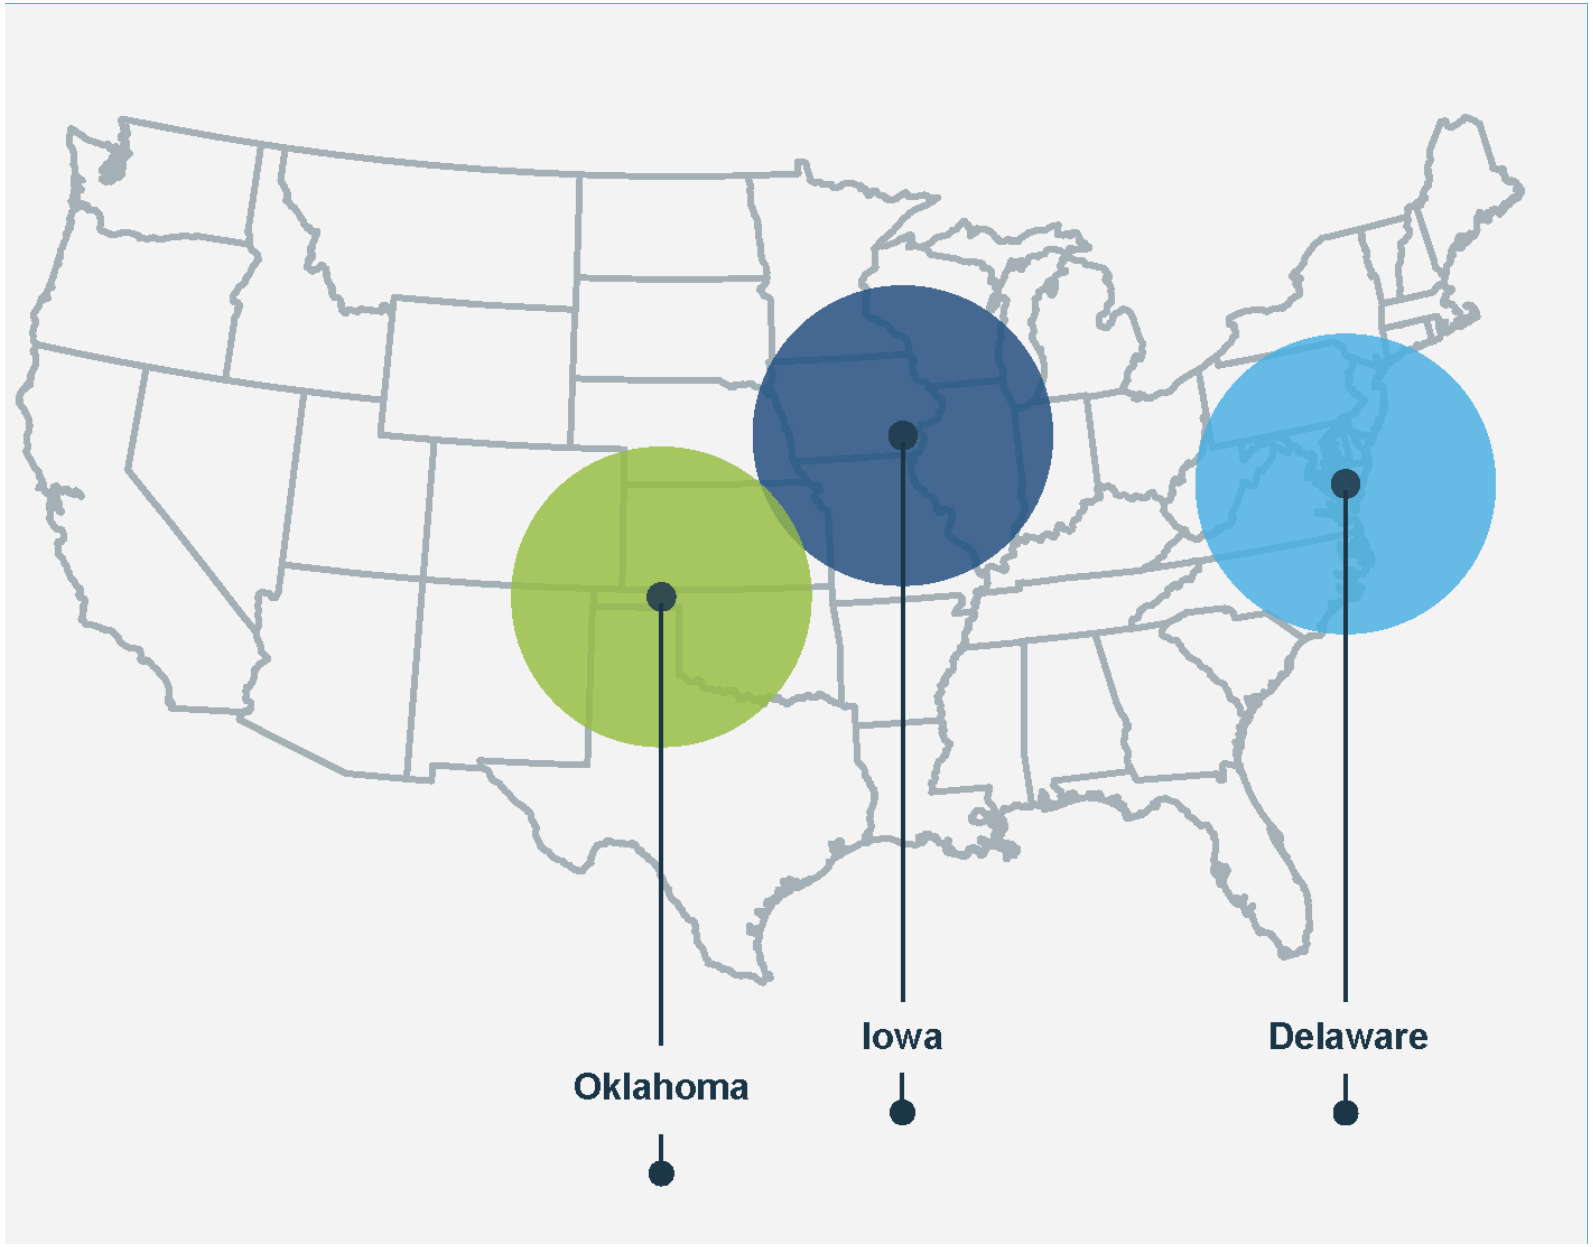
Our team oversees underwriting, and claims management while maintaining strict regulatory compliance. We handle accounting, reporting, and ongoing governance, giving clients confidence that their captive is managed with precision, efficiency, and transparency.

Captive Reinsurance

Aurora Risk Technologies manages all third-party requirements for captive ownership, ensuring full compliance and seamless coordination with regulators, auditors, and service providers. In addition, we offer clients access to a homogenous risk pool, creating greater stability, diversification, and financial strength within their captive programs.

Captive Structure





Domicile Selection

Aurora Risk Technologies manages captives across multiple U.S. domiciles and has extensive experience with offshore jurisdictions. Each domicile is carefully selected and tailored to align with the client's unique needs, ensuring the optimal structure and long-term success of their captive program.

Benefits of Captive Insurance

Cost Savings

Captive insurance can provide significant cost savings compared to traditional commercial insurance by eliminating broker fees, reducing administrative expenses, and allowing businesses to retain underwriting profits.

Customized Coverage

Captive insurance allows businesses to tailor their coverage to their specific risk profile, ensuring they have the protection they need without paying for unnecessary coverage.

Enhanced Risk Management

Captive insurance gives businesses greater control over their risk management strategies, enabling them to implement risk mitigation measures and better manage their exposures.

Increased Profitability

By reducing insurance costs and retaining underwriting profits, captive insurance can improve a business's overall profitability and financial performance.

Improved Cash Flow

Captive insurance can provide businesses with improved cash flow by allowing them to retain premiums that would otherwise be paid to traditional insurers.

Tax Advantages

Captive insurance can offer certain tax advantages, such as the ability to deduct premiums paid to the captive and the potential for tax-deferred growth of the captive's reserves.

Commercial Insurance Market Trends

- Commercial insurance rates remain under upward pressure
  In Q2 2025, U.S. commercial lines premiums increased ~3.8% year-over-year, though that growth has moderated from prior quarters.
- Some lines are harder hit than others
  Excess/umbrella liability, commercial auto, and general liability are seeing sharper increases, while property and cyber markets have shown signs of softening or stabilization in certain segments.
- Inflation, rising materials and labor costs, and increased catastrophe (CAT) exposure drive up claim costs
  These factors pressure underwriters to raise rates to maintain profitability.
- The commercial market faces volatility
  Carriers tighten underwriting, raise deductibles, exclude or limit coverage for emerging or unquantifiable risks, and demand more stringent terms.
- Coverage may be constrained or unavailable in the traditional market
  Especially for unique, emerging, or hard-to-insure exposures.
